

Property Solicitors in Thailand

Buying property in Thailand has always been very a choice for British visitors as many see Thailand as being cheaper and much lower cost of living than Spain. Some Brits who arrive in Thailand always seek the advice and expertise of a property solicitor in Bangkok which has become very popular for Brits where most buy condominiums. Many British citizens also look for a property solicitor in Pattaya as Jomtien in Pattaya City is very popular.

Those who tend to invest in property in Thailand buy in the upscale island of Phuket where property has always been in the upswing. Try finding a solicitor in any of the major tourist towns in Thailand and we at Siam Legal will have a property solicitor available to provide you with the best possible advice on leasing property or buying a villa as an investment.

Thailand even though the global property market has been down as always been in the upswing as most Brits tend to buy the property with any bonds. This being as many Thai banks have now cut back on loans to foreigners. This has however not affected the market and Thailand has largely avoided the property plunge in the UK. Hua Hin tends to be popular for British couples as it is viewed as life off the beaten track and out of the rat race called Bangkok or the party town of Pattaya.

No matter where you wish to buy or rent property in Thailand, always consult a British solicitor at any of our offices in Thailand. The first consultation is always free and we are available online on our main website.
